RELIGION OR LUST? A Mormon Elder Reviews Garfield's

THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

As to the statement that the Mermon Church prevents the administration of justice through the ordinary instrumentalities of law, I suppose that the President here alludes to the difficulties which the government encounters in convicting Mormons of polygamy. Now, it is not likely that when there is a law which entails imprisonment for two or five years and a fine of $5,000 on conviction of having more than one wife, that a Mormon who breaks this law is likely to tell every one of it. His brother Mormons do not wish to know whether he has more than one wife. His marriage to the wives is privately performed in the Temple or Endowment House. The wives themselves are not going to give information by which they will be deprived of the support of their husband for two years or more, and so it is no doubt difficult for the government to get evidence sufficiently strong to convict. Every effort is made by officials, detectives, etc., to obtain admissions, They will meet a little child and ask who its father and mother are and endeavor to get information which they are unable to obtain from their parents. The officers may suspect that the three or four women living parents. The officers may suspect that the three or four women living with a Mormon are married to him, but suspicious count for nothing without evidence.

THE CHILDREN OF MORMONS.

One would imagine that whe sons and daughters by other than the first wife grew up they would feel that their names.

mother if she so desires.

THE CHURCH AND THE LAW.

The next passage runs thus; 'Nor can any ecclesiastical organization be safely permitted to usurp in the smallest degree the functions and powers of the national government. All the judges, the Government All the judges, the Government, all the judges, the Government. The lurors are usually divided half and half between the Mormons and Gentiles, but we are excluded altogether in some instances. There is a case in point in the courts of Salt Lake City at the present time. A number of cattle were stolen from the church herd, and several men were arrested. In selecting a jury the attorney for the derendants, Mr. Brown, claimed that the church was i corporation, that all belonging to it were interested parties, consequently, no Mormon should be allowed on the jury. The point was so decided. Now, suppose a Catholic church in this city was robbed of its precious vessels, would an objection to a Catholic as a juror, on the ground that he was an interested party, because he belonged to that church, be sustained? Then, again, take, for instance, the case of Campanon and Campbell, of Utah, who are now contesting for the seat in Congress from Utah. Cannon, the Mormon candidate, received over 18,000 votes, while Campbell only received about 1,300, yet the Governor, but Campbell has obtained one this time.

THE GOVERNMENT AND MORMONISM

What effect will the inauguration speech have on Mormonism?
None. It will not affect the emigration of Mormons to Salt Lake City in the least, nor will it have any effect on those living there. Polygamy is one of the tenets of our faith, and all true Mormons will THE GOVERNMENT AND MORMONISM sooner die than give up any portion of that faith. You may fine us, im-prison us, drive us away, even kill some of us, but Mornonism will still survive. You may call me ah

A Mormon Elder Reviews Garfield's Inauguration Speech.

Family Relations Considered

Reminiscences of the Invasion of Utah by United States Troops

Must the Mormons Go?

Elder W. C. Staines, of the Mormon church, who is the Utah emitgrant agent in this city, was inferviewed to-day by a T-tegram reporter for the purpose of obtaining his views on the Mormon question. He went to Salt Lake in 187, and has ever since been one of the leaders of Mormonism.

"Mr. Staines," asked the reporter, "Is it true, as stated in the inauguration speech, that the constitutional guarantee of absolute religious inberty is not enjoyed by the people of Utah?"

"No, if it is meant that any other religious denomination is restrained fores not allow the Mormons; yes, if it is meant that the government does not allow the Mormons to enjoy this constitutional guarantee. Why, before the Gentiles had churches of their own, Brigham Young allowed their members to preach in the Fabernacle. The next passage in the finauguration speech is that which states that the Mormon on only offends the troops turned their faces homeward, and Salt Lake City was passage in the finauguration speech is that which states that the Mormon of meddle in politics, except inasmuch as they are compelled to do so much a they would have comply the torch to it as soon as it they would have found it only a mass of burning ruins. But, happly, an understanding was arrived at the that the Mormon of meddle in politics, except inasmuch as they are compelled to do so much a the constitutional guarantee of their own Brigham Young allowed their members to preach in the Tabernacle. The next passage in the finauguration speech is that which states that the Mormon of meddle in politics, except inasmuch as the group of the finauguration speech is that which states that the Mormon of meddle in politics, except inasmuch as the group of the finauguration speech is that which states that the Mormon of meddle in politics, except inasmuch as the group of the finauguration speech is that whic

Name allowed their members to preach in the Tabernacle. The next passage in the finanguration speech is that which states that the Mormon church not only offends the moral sense of mankind by sanctioning polygamy, but prevents the administration of justice through the ordinary instrumentalities of law. As to the first half of this passage, which says that 'the Mormon church offends the moral sense of mankind by sanctioning polygamy,' I claim that this is only because those persons whom the President multiplies indefinitely by calling mankind, whose moral sense is offended by polygamy are people who have been brought up in religions that teach monogamy. If the same persons had been born and brought up Mormons their moral sense would not be offended by polygamy. The moral sense which polygamy The moral sense which polygamy offends is morely a matter of religious training. It is not like the instinctive feeling implanted by God in the human breast which tells us it is wrong to stead or to murder without being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of being told that it is so by some one else, or even in spite of the moral sense few men marry more than one woman, as they do not wish to incur the responsibilities of the care of two or three wives. This is mount to consider the told work of the from this we to support them they are unable to obtain from their parents. The officers may suspect that the three or four women living with a Mormon are married to him, but suspicions count for nothing without evidence.

Is IT A CRIME?

As to the charge of polygamy being a criminal practice which destroys the family relation and endangers social order, it is only criminal in the sense that it is against the law. As for it destroying the family relation I will admit this much; of course where a wife loves her husband deeply it is impossible for her not to be jealous of attentions to any other women who have only one husband. The charge is made against us that we take more than one wife to gratify our lust. This is not the case. It is because it is a tenet of our religion, because our religion teaches us that procreation is one of the noblest works of nature, and that every woman should have the opportunity of becoming a mother if she so desires.

THE CHURGH AND THE LAW.
The next passage runs thus: 'Nor can any ecclesiastical organization be safely permitted to usurp in the smallest degree the functions and powers of the national government. All the judges, the form of the procession of the the numerous mining suits, involving immense amounts, which are constantly being adjudicated. The judges should be paid large salaries, so as to secure the best talent. As it is, the United States government send men to Utah who, with a few exceptions, are fotally unfitted for their positions and duties. One of the plans proposed to break up Mormonism was to divide Utah among the other territories, but that would only give us the balance of power in three or four territories, where now it is confined to one."—New York Evening Telegram.
